IRON BLOSSOM

Fissure Will Work Into Tintic Central.

Interested parties who have had men in the Iron Blossom workings since the ore was picked up south of the district, has made a record run in getting break that was encountered southerly its ten-stamp mill into commission in the that what turn there was to the drift was on my left-hand side, or toward the east. This fact convinced me that a much sharper turn in the direction the fissure was evidently trending would take it into Tintic Central in probably 800 or 1,000 feet more, and possibly less. It is a cinch that the fissure is not working west from the line of its strike. as disclosed in the workings from Beck tunnel south and, in my humble judgment, it has got to either quit or run into ground east of the Iron Blossom."

It is also claimed that at no point from the north end of the Colorado south has there ever been a point where a break carried the ore any distance worth mentioning toward the west.

The entire trend has shown a disposition to work easterly. So there you are.

Tomorrow somebody is likely to come through with a statement that he has though with a statement that he has and domestic purposes, and, as soon as the miling world would not the property of water for miling and domestic purposes, and, as soon as then have had a chance to become improved a son at the nave had a chance to become improved a son at the nave had a chance to become improved are adapted to the treament of the inner to the long to the ores of the district.

Crescent, Nev., April 17 .- The Nevada Victor Mining company, operating in this break that was encountered southerly from the north shaft workings are becoming pretty well grounded in the conviction that, after the Colorado venice are picked up in the Tintic Central company's big estate. One man who was in the Iron Blossom only a few days ago is reported as saying:

"I don't make any pretensions as an expert, but when I was taken down in the Colorado workings south of the shaft, I was careful to keep my bearings from the moment I left the surface. While I was given to understand that the south drift was bearing off a little toward the west, and that, continuing its course, it would go a long distance through Iron Blossom, I noted the fact that what turn there was to the drift.

As yesterday was a holiday in Boston, there were no mining stock quotations made there. The New York markets, as reported over the private wires of James A. Pollock, pulled through the day as follows:

The Ingot company, which has been making a search at depth for pay ore during the past year or more, has opened the mine for a depth of 700 feet below the 400-foot level in the vertical shaft through an incline. The old Mercur ledge has been opened and found to contain ore that will not pay to mine. A drift has been sent out from that to the upper ledge, and while occasional assays have disclosed fair values, the average there is too low for profit. Drifting in this vein is now being done in the hope that an enriched zone will be found. Operations are now being carried on at a vertical depth of approximately 1,000 feet.

Mining Notes.

Seven carloads of ore were yesterday released from the Pioneer sampler. There were released from the Taylor & Brunton sampling works yesterday fif-teen carloads of ore from Utah mines and two from Nevada. J. M. Lockhart, the old time Park City attorney, who now claims Ely, the camp of copper, as his rome, was in the city yesterday on his way back to Nevada after a business trip to the Park. He met a whole raft of friends here during the day.

The big operating shaft on the Pioche King company's property at Pioche is now down 110 feet. It has been sunk sixty-two feet during the past ten days and an average of five feet a day is beling made. At the present rate it will not be long till the ore zone is penetrated.

Word from the Grutli company's property in East Tintic is to the effect that he shaft is now down fifty feet and that the formation is almost identical with what it was in the East Tintic Development ground at 100 feet. The ground setting soft and the superintendent is sanguine that he will be down in the minal-bearing regions before long.

Yesterday's story about the finding of ich placers in the Mexican Agricultural rich placers in the Mexican Agricultural Land company's immense tract at Tierra Blanca, in the state of Oaxaca, brought a 'rise' yesterday afternoon. A. M. Henbest of Kansas City, who is representing a land company with possessions forty miles from the tract mentioned, says he owns five acres in the heart of the Mexican Agricultural Land company's holdings, which he secured while working for a subsidiary concern that was selling 30, 300 acres' of the tract. While the parent company made a deal that called all the unsold land in, Mr. Henbest says they don't get his. He intends to hold it till it is worth money. worth mone

Dan Ferguson Says His Moscow Bonanza Lease Is a Sure Winner.

Dan Ferguson is up from Milford making final arrangements for the beginning of operations on the Moscow Bonanza company's mines in Beaver county, upon which he recently secured a lease. He will get things under way tomorrow morning, and he promises that there will be things doing right from the start.

"I shall commence sinking in a fissure that carries six inches of rich ore right at the grass roots," said Mr. Ferguson, "and I believe that a couple of weeks' work will show that the ledge is worth mining in. There is a big mine in the Bonanza ground, just as sure as you are born, and if things will move right and if my money will hold out for a time, I shall be mining in some splendid shoots of ore before this year is over. You can just mark that down.'

Dan Ferguson took the adjoining property, the Burning Moscow, and made a fine mine of it for Matthew Cullen, J. L. Rawlins and others, and when through some friction or another, he tendered his resignation, he knew that the ore shoots developed in the Burning Moscow extended into what is now the Moscow Bonanza company's ground. As a matter of fact, he en deavored to persuade the Burning Mos-cow owners to buy it, but in that he was unsuccessful.

Mr. Ferguson says the Burning Mosand the fence on the 400, the 450 and 500-foot levels at the present time, and it begins to look as though trouble was brewing between the two companies. But that is neither here nor there, as far as the Ferguson lease is concerned. From the experience he gained while in the Burning Moscow, he knows just what he can do to make a paying proposition of the Bonanza, and that is what he is now undertaking to do.

"If I could operate through the Burning Moscow shaft," said Mr. Ferguson before edging away. "I would be wearing diamonds in two months."
